Holiday Travelers Will Find New Eateries at Washington Airports This Season

Travelers going through Washington Dulles International and Ronald Reagan Washington National Airports this holiday season are in for a culinary treat, especially those who have not visited the Airports recently. Over the past year, the Metropolitan Washington Airports Authority has accelerated its efforts to bring passengers a broad variety of recognizable national and local concepts with reasonable pricing.

Passengers at Reagan National can now add a Cosi Restaurant in National Hall to their pre-security dining options. Post-security, Terminal A has a re-styled EuroCafe and in Terminal B/C the South Pier boasts Tidewater Landing, a new full-service restaurant. On the Center Pier, Fuddruckers and Mayorga Coffee join the eating alternatives.

At Dulles International, the Authority opened numerous new dining facilities in 2006:

Main Terminal/Z-Gates

Harry's Tap Room (ticket level, the only sit-down restaurant pre-security)
Starbucks and Guava & Java at the bag claim level

Concourse A

Cosi café

Concourse B

Tequileria, Harry's Tap Room,
Gas Light Bakery, Potbelly Sandwich Works

Concourse C

Maui Wowi coffee and smoothies (two locations), Starbucks (2 locations),
Tidewater Landing, California Tortilla, The Firkin and Fox pub, Potbelly Sandwich Works
